Dear Valerian,

We have not heard from you since my e-mail Friday (see below). I tried phoning your mobile earlier today, but you may not have it on while traveling. Please respond at your earliest convenience as to whether King & Spalding may speak openly with us, and that in connection with this permission, that you waive the attorney-client privilege between S&T and them for purposes of our discussion.

Kind regards,

Subject: S&T Oil Equipment and Machinery

Dear Valerian:

We are writing you in connection with the pending ICSID proceedings by S&T against the Government of Romania. We were trying to arrange a meeting with you and King and Spalding, but then learned you had to travel to Romania. We would like to request that you permit King and Spalding lawyers to meet with us and discuss the case openly. For this purpose, they have advised us that they will need for you to give them permission to speak openly with us, and that in connection with this permission, that you waive the attorney-client privilege between S&T and them for purposes of our discussion. We cannot advise you on the waiver of privilege, but will ask that you consult your advisors and communicate your decision to us as soon as possible.

Kind regards,

- Mark
